13/3/26 Over the past few weeks, Year 4 have thrown themselves into every learning opportunity with wonderful enthusiasm. World Book Day was a real highlight; the children arrived dressed as their favourite characters and spoke confidently about the books they love. It was fantastic to see how passionately they shared their recommendations with one another. In science, the class were fully engaged as we explored how different foods can be used to create simple circuits. Their curiosity and teamwork shone through as they experimented and tested their ideas. We also enjoyed an excellent Egyptian Day. The children immersed themselves in the topic, creating impressive canopic jars, crafting colourful Egyptian jewellery, and performing the dances they had been creating over the past half term to Year 3. They showed great confidence and pride in their work.

24/4/26 The sounds of the rainforest are echoing around year 4 as we dive into our new topic this summer term. We've already discovered the different layers of the forest and the animals that lurk in them, as well as the noises they make! Maple had their first swimming session this week - first of five - with Cherry having their five after half term. Following the theme of sounds, we've begun learning about body percussion in music, and, coupled to our rainforest theme, have created rain without any instruments. Meanwhile, English has seen us conducting interviews with creatures great and small - ending in writing up an interview with a nouka - the creature from our latest book. Maths has seen us plunge into decimals - a concept everyone is slowly getting their heads around! On top of all this, we've been discovering animal classification in science - sorting out which animals are closely related and why and often why they are named. We don't want to end up with a Horse with no Name... as the pop group America sang!
